

APPLICATION FOR COMMUNITY HOUSING WITH CENSW

Common Equity NSW provides two different types of housing. The first being Co-operative properties which are homes that are leased to a housing co-operative under a Co-operative Partnership Agreement (CPA) where the Co-operative is the landlord and CENSW is the Registered Community Housing Provider. CENSW either owns or leases these properties from the NSW Government (Land & Housing Corporation).

Direct managed properties are dwellings that are rented to individuals with CENSW as the landlord. Tenants are required to be eligible for social housing and currently on the Housing Pathways Social Housing Register.

Please contact us if you have any questions or require assistance with this form.

Co-operative Living:

Housing Co-operatives are intentional and vibrant communities. Like-minded people actively working together, selecting new members making local decisions, maintaining properties, learning new skills and contributing to their community. All members actively contribute and benefit through security of tenure, reduced costs, local decision making and control and self-management of their cooperative.

Choosing to live in a Co-operative means there are certain requirements that are expected from Co-operative members (people who live in the Co-op).

From the above information about what a Co-operative is, would you be comfortable with your information being passed on to Co-operatives that may have any suitable vacancies:

☐ Yes

☐ No

Do you have a preferable Co-operative that you would like to join? If so, please state the name/s of the Co-operatives below:

Applicant's declaration:
